

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method and apparatus including an overview component depicting a plurality of virtual machines on a display of a computerized system. Parameter details of at least one virtual machine are concurrently displayed with the overview component. The method steps include receiving the compiled source code for two applications, creating two relocatable virtual machines to run the compiled source codes, determining the parameters for the multiple virtual machine environment, locating the two relocatable virtual machine and generating a target executable file for the environment.